

FCC, Please understand that everything in the US does not have to be legislated. We as XM listeners pay to listen to commercial free music. Why should we have to tune in to local stations that offer traffic and weather? I understand local radio stations are concerned about the number of listeners being lost to satellite radio services but it is our choice and we PAY for the XM service. How is the XM listener different than individuals who have cable or satellite television in their homes? Let radio markets shift and move under true competition. Why waste tax payers time and money trying to limit or legislate how we listen to a pay service? You all seem to forget about the consumer. Im sure there's something more important you all could mess with. LEAVE OUR XM SERVICE ALONE!!!
